

George Sibiya is a final year PhD student at the University of Pretoria. He is also working as a researcher for the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR). His research interests are in computer security and Cloud computing. On his spare time he plays around with some Android applications development.